RESILIENCE

CONFIDENCE

Kids skilled like lions will be more confident in themselves and their abilities. This self-assuredness will help them succeed in school, social situations, and ultimately, in their careers and personal lives. Confident kids can also think critically, and are willing to challenge the status quo when necessary.

INDEPENDENCE

Kids skilled like lions will develop a sense of independence and self-reliance. They will be more capable of making their own decisions, solving problems, and taking charge of their future. This in turn makes them less susceptible to external bribes, narratives and coercion.

LEADERSHIP

Kids skilled like lions will often become natural leaders. They will have the confidence, resilience, and independence necessary to take charge in group settings, make decisions, and inspire others.

Bringing out future skills

„LIKE LIONS“ supports people to be fit for the future. The idea is to prepare our children and ourselves for dealing with a „VUCA world“ (Volatile, Uncertain, Complex, Ambiguous). "Like Lions" stands for the idea of developing qualities such as strength, courage, resilience, indomitable spirit in children - real lion skills.

„LIKE LIONS“ means

... to raise strong, courageous, independent children who are not afraid to take risks and pursue their dreams. The term "lion" is used to symbolize strength, courage, perseverance. Symbolically, this means that parents are preparing their children to become strong, self-confident individuals who are able to overcome life's tricky challenges with courage and determination.

In emotional terms, "Like Lions" stands for the great responsibility and challenges that come with raising children and shaping them into strong and successful personalities who can hold their own in the world. But it also expresses the joy and self-affirmation we feel when we watch our children grow and succeed in life.

The classical VUCA ...

... refers to difficult basic prerequisite and framework conditions for families, children, parents or in professional systems in which people live and/or come together.

STATUS QUO - Current state

"Like Lions" is dedicated to developing solution strategies for dealing with a world that is changing at breathtaking speed. We are thinking first and foremost about our children and their future. We have a responsibility to create a future worth living for our children - no matter how difficult the current conditions are and how and where things develop.

How can we as parents - who have experienced a comparatively smoothly functioning, calm, unagitated world over the last two to three decades - prepare our children in the best possible way for the challenges of today's and tomorrow's world? How can we guide them into life in such a way that they can live their lives freely and independently? Know how to help themselves at all times? Learn to lead themselves and others and make the right decisions?

QUO TENDIMUS - Where do we go

Here, too, we use the acronym VUCA. In this context, however, it stands for Vision, Understanding, Clarity, Agility. The V stands for the development of a vision. What is the most optimal and advantageous course of action in a particular situation? The U stands for understanding a certain situation in its entirety. What circumstances and conditions are those affected confronted with? The C stands for the clarity and consciousness, with which things can be perceived and categorized with all available senses. What needs to be considered? What can be useful? What can be a hindrance? What is the optimal solution scenario? The A stands for agility, which is used to think, plan, organize and finally turn everything into a targeted activity - whether in a dynamic high-performance team, as a heterogeneous group, in pairs or as an individual.
